Use of English

Read this!

"Where are you going today?" asked the wolf.

1 Read.

"Where are you going today?" asked the wolf.

These are the words somebody said.
This is direct speech.

These words tell you who said them.
This is the reporting clause.

In this sentence the reporting clause comes after the direct speech.

The reporting clause can also come before the direct speech:

Red Riding Hood answered, "I am going to my grandmother's house."

2 Underline the reporting clauses.

- 1 "You are a kind girl," said the wolf.
- 2 Red Riding Hood said, "My father is a woodcutter."
- 3 Her mother said, "Please take this cake to Grandmother."
- 4, "My grandmother lives all alone," said Red Riding Hood.

3 Read.

The reporting clause can also come in the middle of the direct speech:

"Remember," said her mother, "you mustn't talk to anyone on the way."

4 Underline the reporting clauses.

- 1 "Look," said the wolf, "there are some pretty flowers over there."
- 2 "Grandmother," said Red Riding Hood, "you have enormous ears."
- 3 "Help, help," shouted Red Riding Hood, "it's the wolf!"
- 4 "Look," said the woodcutter, "the wolf is running away."
